INDIA@75: A JOURNEY OF INDIA'S SOCIO-ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Harshit Mishra
Piyush Prakash

As India celebrates 'Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav' to commemorate 75 years of its independence, there is so much to appreciate the way India has transformed itself from an underdeveloped country to a major economic force to reckon in these 75 years. Today, India stands as one of the fastest growing economies while the major economies show a sign of recession amidst the disruptions caused by the Ukrainian war and the Covid-19 pandemic. India has more than doubled its life-expectancy since independence and has emerged as the pharmacy capital of the world. India's contribution to the global health was at display during the Covid-19 pandemic. Nearly 100 countries benefitted from the Indian vaccines and medicines, while at home India has cumulatively carried out over 200 crores vaccinations. Not only this, India has achieved cent percent electrification today covering 6 lakh villages. At the same time India has attained self-sufficiency in food production while meeting the food needs of many countries. From frugal innovations in space technology to CEOs of global technology firms, India has done stupendously well in nurturing a pool of highly talented and sought after global talent. These achievements stand out if we look back where we stood at the eve of Independence. The Indian GDP has grown by ~50 times in these years from 2.7 lakh crores in 1947. India was a food deficit country at the time of Independence and was dependent on imports to feed its people. Only 3000 villages were electrified in 1950. The average life expectancy was estimated to be around 31% at the time of independence while the literacy rate was only 18.33% in 1950. These developments bear testimony to India's resilience amidst extremely challenging socio-economic conditions on the eve of independence. This very resilience of the Indian polity and economy inspires confidence towards achieving the goal of Atmanirbhar Bharat as we leap into the centenary quarter of India's independence. India@75 is also a moment to step back and reflect on the successes and current challenges in achieving inclusive development. In this article we briefly trace the progress made by India on the economic front, human development front and governance front while understanding the major roadblocks and suggesting way forward.

1. Economic Growth: 1947 to Present

Indian Economy on the Eve of Independence

"At a time when the West of Europe, the birthplace of modern industrial system, was inhabited by uncivilised tribes, India was famous for the wealth of her rulers and for high artistic skill of her craftsmen. And even at a much later period, when the merchant adventurers from the West made their first appearance in India, the industrial development of this country was, at any rate, not inferior to that of the more advanced European nations." This observation made by the Industrial Commission Report (1918) sheds light on the superior industrial status of India which was systematically undermined and brought down by the imperialistic policies of the company rule and crown rule in

CIVIL SERVICES (MAIN) EXAMINATION PREPARING FOR GS I & II

S B Singh

For the Civil Services (Main) Examination, the first thing to bear in mind is its nature and scope with a view to go for a balanced, timely preparation and secure good marks. While the optional paper does play a crucial role in fetching a good score, the four GS papers hold the clue to a high rank as they carry a total of one thousand marks. The main exam has been designed to test the following qualities in a candidate.

Cognitive skill: It means the skill to make sense of what you read and understand. Everybody reads books, newspapers and magazines, but not all make adequate sense of what is written there. In other words, you need to have a clear grasp of the issue, topic you are reading. Cognitive skills are both inherited and acquired. By cultivating the habit of purposeful reading of issues described in the sources sharpens your cognitive skills. Therefore, what you read is not enough, what you understand by reading it is also required.

Linguistic skill: Stated simply, it is about your writing skills. Since the entire main exam is a written exam, you need to write hundreds of pages in all the papers. How well you right depends on how effective your writing style is. The main components for effective writing are: clarity of thought, seamless expression, cogent views, and multi-dimensional content. If you can hone these skills through long-term practice, your writing ability will match the requirements of the exam. Half the success in the mains exam will depend on your writing ability, and this calls for a very serious consideration in your preparations.

Normative skill: This means putting values in your answers. Not all, but many questions will demand applying certain norms, values and ethics. Unless you have developed your normative skills, you may not be able to take the right stand on the issue. Say for example, a question is asked on patriarchy, gender gap, democratic deficit, environmental degradation etc., you will have to apply certain norms and values to answer the question. Those norms should be applicable to the issue you are discussing and not unrelated norms. Again, this requires immense practice to master your answer with desirable norms and values.

Time-management skill: Since there are large number of questions asked in the main exam, these days, without time management, it is impossible to finish the entire question paper. Quite a few candidates come out of the exam hall complaining that they could not write answers to all the questions for lack of time though they knew it. This is sheer lack of time management. You cannot go to the exam hall and expect to write all the answers unless you have practiced it several times before. You should be prudent to find out easy questions that will take less time for you to write. Save your time by first attempting those questions you know well before tackling more time consuming questions.

Preparing for GS-I Paper: Three different disciplines, viz; History, Geography, and Social issues constitute the syllabus of GS-I Paper. Of these, history accounts for the bulk of the syllabus comprising as it does three segments of history-Modern India, Post-Independent India, and World History. Again, of these three segments, modern India takes the lion's share as nine to ten questions out of a total of twenty questions are usually asked from this section. Therefore, one needs to prepare modern India on priority basis. On post-independent India, questions are asked intermittently, not regularly. But be that as it may, one needs to be prepared with this part also. The major developments in independent India on the front of agriculture, industrialization, scientific progress, cultural landscape, socialism, Nehruvian foreign policy should be studied. On world history, every year one or two questions are asked, mostly from Russian, French Revolutions, World War I, and II, Cold War and post-cold war world.

In Geography, the questions are very dynamic and contemporary. Conventional questions that are usually taught from text books are not asked quite often. Instead, contemporary issues are emphasized which relate to environment, ecology, agricultural production etc. It will be wise, therefore, to keep oneself abreast of these latest developments.

On social issues, poverty in all its dimensions, population issues, demographic transition in India and the world are important to cover. Hunger, nutrition, food security are other related issues worth preparing.

Preparing for GS Paper -II

This paper consists of polity, governance, society, and international relations. Needless to say, emphasis is given to polity and international relations in this paper. For polity, one should make verticals like parliament, state legislatures and cover them from each angle. For example, one should know the functions of parliament, bicameralism in Indian legislature, role of the upper houses, passage of bills, parliamentary privileges, disruptions in parliament, role of opposition unity, anti-defection law, parliamentary vs. presidential form of govt. Likewise, on judiciary, one should read about some recent landmark judgments, role of the Supreme Court, need for All India Judicial Service, collegium system of appointments, accountability of judges, tribunals, alternate dispute resolution mechanism, judicial reforms, pendency of cases, judicial infrastructure, bail reforms, reforms in the criminal justice system. Similarly, if one wants to cover our electoral system, one should start with the role of the Election Commission of India, need for reforms in the election commission, its functions, model code of conduct, electoral reforms, reforms in electoral representation system, simultaneous elections, culture of freebies, bribery, role of political parties, etc. On federalism, one should know the uniqueness of Indian federalism and its real working. Concepts like cooperative federalism, competitive federalism, coercive federalism should also be prepared. Due emphasis should be laid on fiscal federalism. Then, the posts of the President and Governor should be thoroughly studied right from their election procedure to critical evaluation of their functioning. Then, the functions of CAG, Attorney General should be looked into. Panchayati Raj institutions are extremely important, particularly with respect to their financial health and autonomous functioning.

Governance is another important section in GS-II syllabus. Though governance encompasses a wide range of issues today, for UPSC Mains exam purpose, the topics to pay more attention are: civil services reforms, police reforms, working of constitutional and statutory institutions like the CBI, CVC, NHRC, NCW, NCM, various regulatory committees, public distribution system, citizen's charter, deficiencies in the working of important acts like the abortion law, human trafficking act, surrogacy act, whistle blower act, RTI, etc.

Preparing for international relations: This part of the syllabus covers three parts-Indian foreign policy, international relations, and international institutions. On Indian foreign policy, there will be questions on changes in our foreign policy. For example, there were many shifts noticed in our foreign policy during the Covid pandemic. Our approach towards globalization has also been impacted by the Atma Nirbhar Bharat Scheme. Another shift that can be identified in India's foreign policy is de-hyphenation of our hyphenated foreign policy. Similarly, India has moved from non-alignment to multi-alignment in recent times. Such issues need to be understood in their contemporary international context. Then, major initiatives like the Act East Policy, Act Far East Policy, Think West Policy, Neighbourhood First Policy, Extended Neighbourhood Policy must be studied. Next, India's bilateral relations with its south Asian neighbours, viz; Nepal, Bangladesh, Bhutan, Pakistan, Sri Lanka, Maldives, Afghanistan should be covered. India's role in regional organizations like SAARC, BIMSTEC, BBIN should also be understood. Our engagement with our extended neighbours, i.e., Central Asia, South East Asia has received new vigour. This should be carefully examined in terms of benefits accruing to India through such policy thrusts. Another major priority in our foreign policy is engaging Africa. Thus, opportunities and challenges in Africa for our country must be covered. Then, our bilateral relations with the major powers-USA, China, Russia must be studied in all their dimensions. In recent times, we are also engaging deeply with Japan, Australia, UK, EU on a bilateral basis. The evolving contours of these bilateral engagements should be keenly followed. Finally, Latin America is emerging as a potential area of cooperation. Foreign policy initiatives towards this region needs a careful examination.

Turning to India's joining various groupings, special attention should be paid to BRICS, SCO, QUAD, I2U2, IPEF, G-20, India and UNO, India and WTO, India and NIEO are other topics to be covered well.

As regards international institutions, UN reforms, reforms in the WTO, IMF, World Bank should be focus of study.

PM Shri Narendra Modi's Mann Ki Baat

31st July 2022

HIGHLIGHTS

- This time 'Mann Ki Baat' is very special. The reason for this is 15th of August - when India will complete 75 years of her Independence. We are all going to witness a splendid and historic moment.
- On the 31st of July, let us all salute the martyrdom of Shaheed Udham Singhji. I offer my humble tributes to all such other great revolutionaries who sacrificed their all for the country.
- I am very happy to see that people from all walks of life and from every section of the society are participating in different programs connected with 'Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav' which is taking the form of a mass movement. One such event took place in Meghalaya earlier this month. People remembered the brave warrior of Meghalaya U. Tirot Singh on his death anniversary. Tirot Singhji fiercely opposed the British conspiracy to control the Khasi Hills and destroy the culture there. In Karnataka, a unique campaign named Amrita Bharathi Kannadathi was launched during which grand programs were organized at 75 places in the state. Along with remembering the great freedom fighters of Karnataka, efforts were also made to bring to the fore the local literary achievements.
- This very July, an interesting endeavour has been undertaken named 'Azadi Ki Railgadi Aur Railway Station'. The objective of this effort is to make people know the role of Indian Railways in the freedom struggle. Gomoh Junction in Jharkhand, now officially known as Netaji Subhas Chandra Bose Junction, Gomoh, was the very station in which Netaji Subhash was successful in dodging British officers by boarding the Kalka Mail. Likewise, the names of bravehearts like Ram Prasad Bismil and Ashfaq Ullah Khan are associated with Kakori Railway Station near Lucknow. The Vanchi Maniyachchi Junction in Thoothukudi district of Tamil Nadu is named after freedom fighter Vanchinathanji. This list is pretty long. 75 such railway stations have been identified spread over 24 states across the country. These 75 stations are being decorated for many types of programs. I urge teachers to take small children of their school to the station and narrate the whole chain of events to them.
- From the 13th to 15th of August, a special campaign 'Har Ghar Tiranga' is being organized. You must hoist the tricolor at your home. The Tricolor connects us, inspires us to do something for the country. I also have a suggestion that all of us can place the tricolor in our social media profile pictures from 2nd of August to 15th August. 2nd of August has a special connection with our tricolor as this day is the birth anniversary of Pingali Venkaiahji who designed our national flag. I pay homage to him and the great revolutionary Madam Cama whose role in shaping the Tricolor has been very important.

- In the fight against COVID, AYUSH has played an important role at the global level. AYUSH exports have witnessed a record growth and it is also a matter of joy that many new start-ups are emerging in this sector. Recently, a Global Ayush Investment and Innovation Summit was held during which investment proposals of about Rs 10,000 crore have been received.
- The Indian Virtual Herbarium launched in the month of July is an example of how we can use the digital world to connect with our roots. The platform hosts more than 1 lakh specimens of the botanical diversity of India. I am sure the Indian Virtual Herbarium will become an important resource for research on Indian flora.
- These days our farmers are performing wonders in the production of honey. Subhash Kamboji of Yamunanagar, Haryana, Vinod Kumarji of Palli village, Jammu, Madhukeshwar Hegdeji of Karnataka and Nimitji of Lucknow, are doing excellent work in honey production by adopting innovative beekeeping techniques. In Ayurveda, honey has been described as an elixir. Today, even youth pursuing professional studies are making honey a source of self-employment. You will be happy to know that the export of honey from the country has also increased. The country started campaigns like National Beekeeping and Honey Mission, farmers worked hard, and the sweetness of our honey started reaching across the world. There are still huge possibilities in this field. I would like our youth to join these opportunities and take advantage of them and realize new possibilities.

- 'Minjar Mela' is underway in Chamba, Himachal Pradesh. The inflorescence of the maize plant is called Minjar. When flowers bloom on the maize, 'Minjar Mela' is celebrated. Fairs have been of great cultural importance in our country. When Kharif crops ripen after the rains in Himachal, Shimla, Mandi, Kullu and Solan, 'Sari' or 'Sair' is also celebrated. 'Jagra' is also going to arrive in September itself. There are many such traditional fairs of tribal societies held in different parts in our country.
- Some of these fairs are associated with tribal culture, while some are organized in connection with tribal history and heritage. If you get a chance, you must visit the four-day 'Samakka-Saralamma Jatara Fair' in Medaram, Telangana. It is a big center of faith for the Koya tribal community, not only in Telangana, but also in Chhattisgarh, Maharashtra and Andhra Pradesh. The 'Maridamma Fair' in Andhra Pradesh is also a big fair connected with the beliefs of the tribal society. Similarly, the people of Garasiya tribe in Rajasthan organize 'Siyawa ka Mela' or 'Mankhan Ro Mela' on Vaishakh Shukla Chaturdashi. The 'Mawli Mela' of Narayanpur of Bastar in Chhattisgarh is also very special. In Madhya Pradesh, the 'Bhagoria Mela' is very famous. Similarly, many fairs like 'Tarnetar' and 'Madhopur' are very famous in Gujarat. Fairs are, in themselves, a great source of energy for our society, our life.
- In modern times, these old links of the society are very important to strengthen the spirit of 'Ek Bharat-Shreshtha Bharat'. Our youth must join them and whenever you go to such fairs, share the pictures on social media too. You can also upload photos on the website of the Ministry of Culture. In the next few days, the Culture Ministry is going to start a competition, where, those who send the best pictures of the fairs will be rewarded.

- Today, when it comes to Indian toys, the echo of 'Vocal for Local' is being heard everywhere. The quantity of toys coming from abroad in India is continuously decreasing. Earlier, where toys worth more than Rs 3 thousand crore used to come from outside, now their import has reduced by 70 percent and it is a matter of joy that during this period, India has exported toys worth more than Rs 2,600 crore to foreign countries. Whereas earlier, only toys worth Rs 300-400 crore used to go out of India. India's toy sector has proven its mettle by transforming itself. Indian Manufacturers are now making toys based on Indian Mythology, History and Culture. Toy clusters that are there everywhere in the country, small entrepreneurs who make toys, are getting a lot of benefit from it. Toy manufacturers from India are also working closely with leading global toy brands.

- In sports, this entire month has been full of action. PV Sindhu won her first title of Singapore Open. Neeraj Chopra also continued his excellent performance and won the silver medal for the country in the World Athletics Championship. At the Ireland Para Badminton International as well, our players boosted our glory by winning 11 medals. Indian players also performed well in the World Cadet Wrestling Championship held in Rome. Our athlete Suraj won the Gold Medal of Wrestling in the Greco Roman event after a long gap of 32 years. It is also a great honor for India to host the 44th Chess Olympiad in Chennai. Commonwealth Games has also begun in the UK. An Indian team, full of youthful enthusiasm is representing the country there. I am also happy that India is going to host the FIFA Under-17 Women's World Cup.
- The results of class 10th and 12th have been declared. I congratulate all those students who have achieved success through their hard work and dedication. Due to the pandemic, the last two years have been extremely challenging. The courage and restraint shown by our youth in these circumstances is highly commendable. I wish everyone a bright future.

Finally, for international relations, the emerging New Cold War, US-China as well as US-Russia rivalry should be looked into. India's response to the international crises like Ukraine war, food shortage, oil shortage, disruption in global supply chains need to be factored in your preparations. The emerging world order, issues of multilateralism are other topics requiring good attention.

FORTS THAT ECHO THE STORY OF INDIA'S FREEDOM STRUGGLE

Untold Story of Broadcast During Quit India Movement

BOOK EXCERPT

In August 1942, Mahatma Gandhi gave a memorable mantra to the Indians "let every breath of yours give expression to the mantra: Karengay ya Marengay". Draft instructions for the public for participating in the Quit India Movement were to be made public "only on failure of the contemplated negotiations... were to cover a period of at least three weeks", said Gandhiji.

But on the contrary, Gandhiji was not given time for negotiations and was hastily arrested. The arrogant British Government once again felt its utility when infinite patience was maintained by Mahatma Gandhi. All National leaders of Congress right upto the Block level were arrested. However many socialist leaders went underground and escaped arrest and, in turn, played a vital role in the Movement.

Then followed a spontaneous mob violence protesting the arrest that took place in Bombay on August 9, 1942. The nation apparently became 'leaderless' with mass arrests unleashed by the government. People at large became restless and angry and put their might behind the mantra of Quit India 'Karengay ya Marengay'. Thousands of processions started coming out on streets encompassing whole of India. It became unruly and ransacked government establishments like telephone lines, police stations, railway stations or post offices. It was actually a reaction to atrocities unleashed by the British police and army against common man and even unarmed protesters.

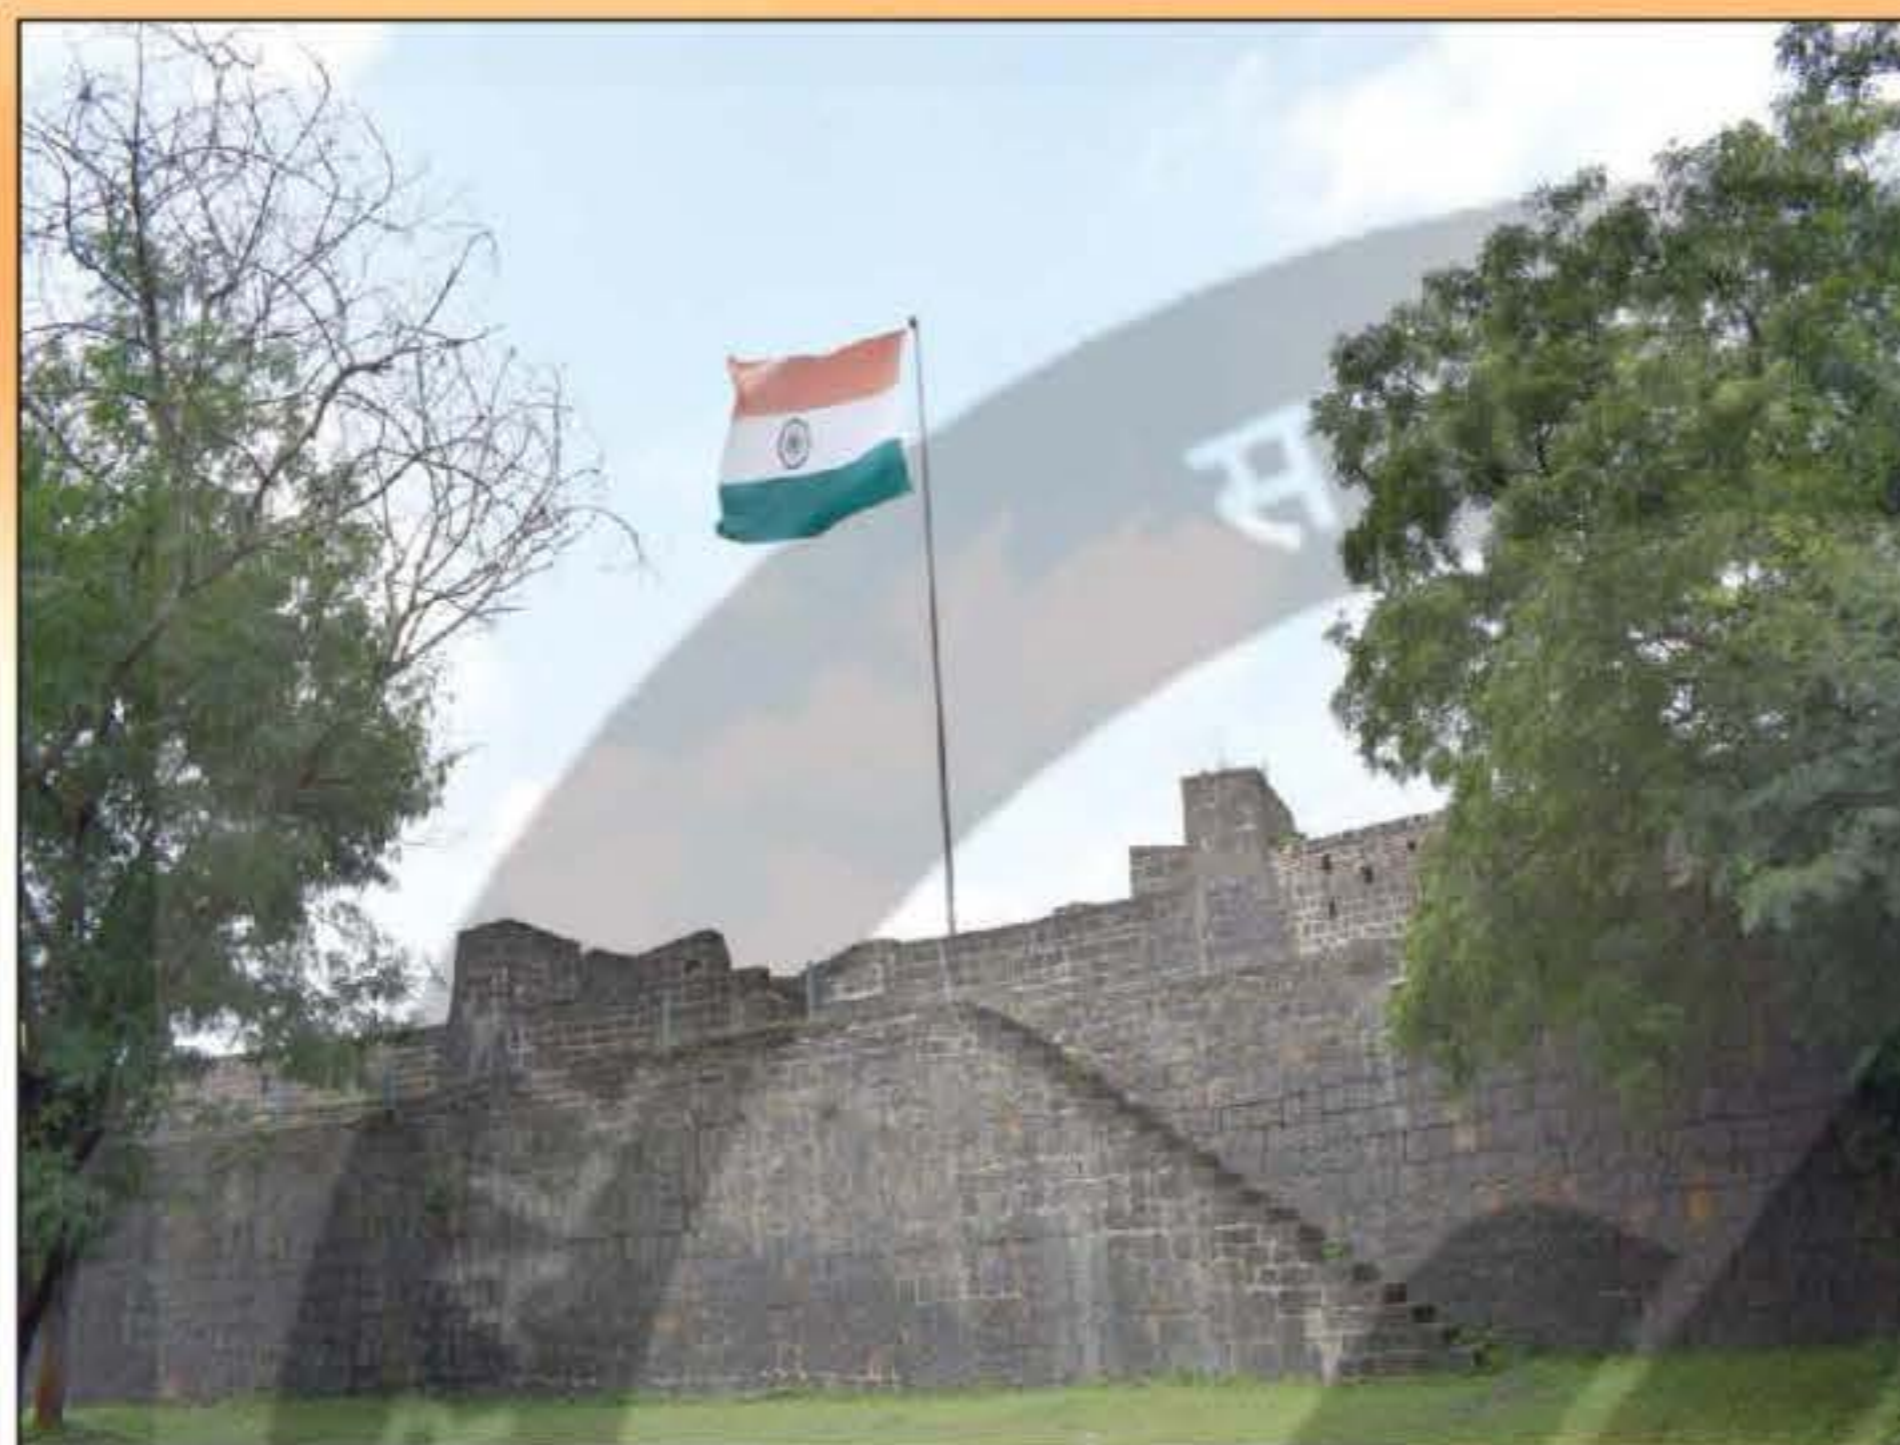

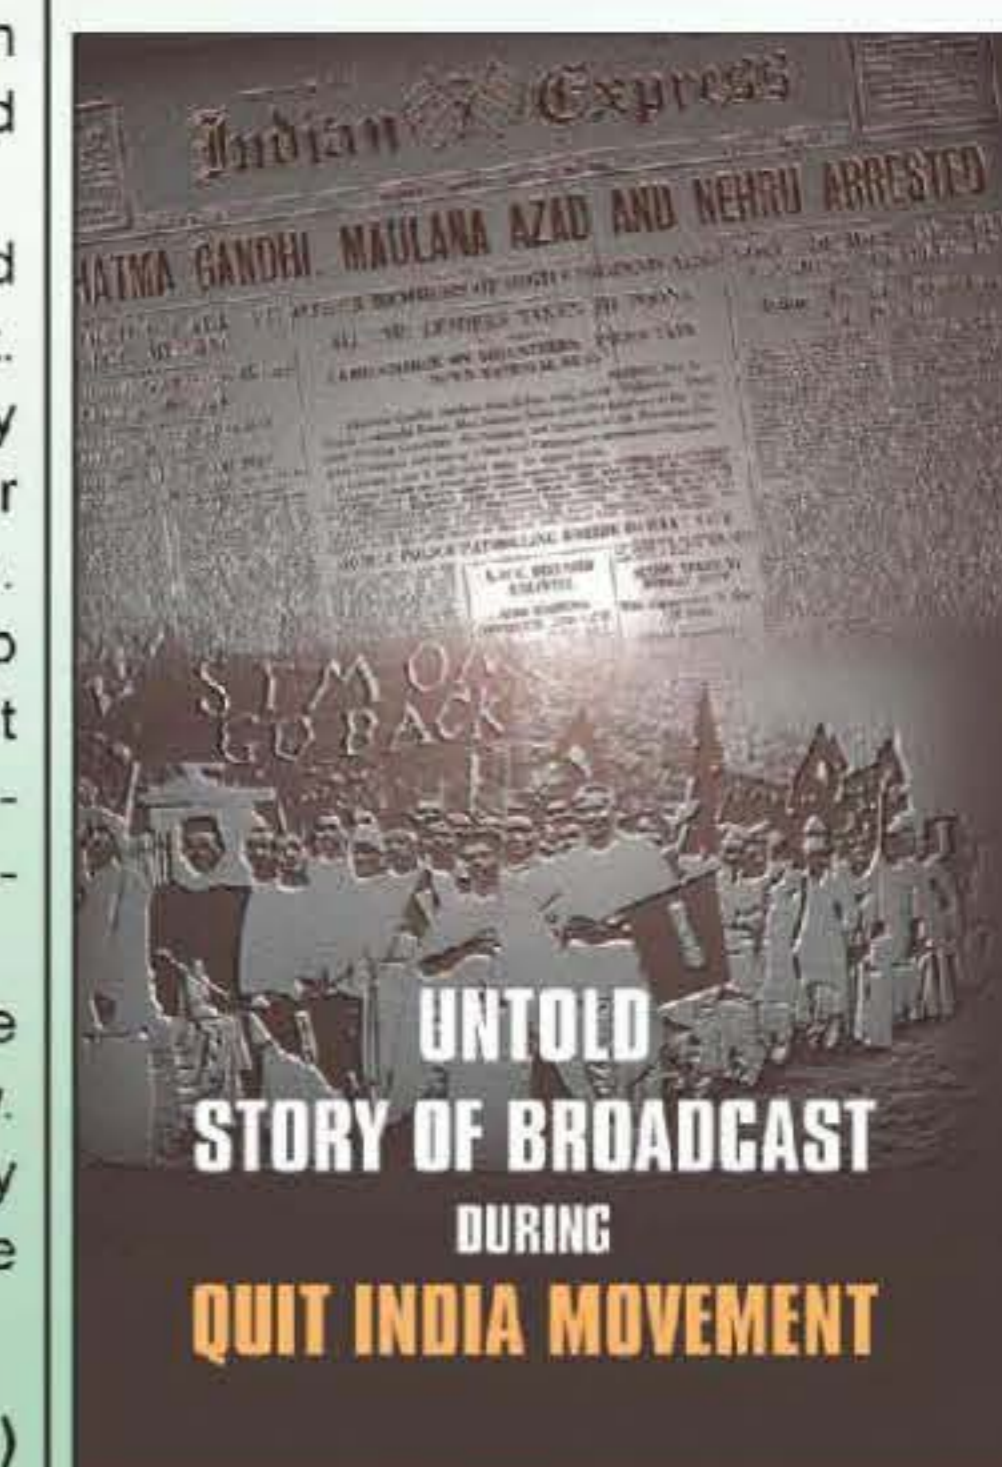

Have you ever heard of the name of Vithaldas (alias Babubhai) Madhavi Khakhar, a Gujarati aged about 20 years who was the leader of the Mission of Clandestine Radio Broadcast (CRB) of 1942? Others were Vithaldas Kanthabhai Javeri another Gujarati, aged about 28 years; Nanak Gharchand Motwane a Sindhi aged 40 the owner of Chicago Radio and Telephone Co. Ltd.; Miss Usha Mehta a Gujarati aged 22 years; Chandrakant Babubhai Javeri, another 23 year old Gujarati; Jaganath Raghunath Thakur, a 27 year old Bombay native; and Nariman Abarbad Printer, a 40 year old Parsi, a radio engineer. Printer had an assistant called Mirza who also got involved into the project of Clandestine Radio. This is a list of some of the freedom fighters, though there were many others whose records are not found who shook the Raj from within with their clandestine broadcast. It is understood, funding and functioning of the Clandestine Radio was patronized by Ram Manohar Lohia himself.

H.V.R. Iyenger the then Additional Secretary of British Bombay Government noted that :

"I used to listen to these broadcasts... and have now gone through monitor reports and summaries prepared by Scott.... There is much evidence of Congress socialist philosophy to the broadcast. I have heard from private sources that Ram Manohar Lohia, an underground Congress Socialist, who refused to common cause with Subhas Chandra Bose, was the main inspiration of these broadcasts and certainly there is internal evidence in support of this. For instance on 20th October the station said "We have learnt bitter lessons of the democracy of the West enslavement of the working class and peasantry". On the 23rd it stated "The free India will be of farmers, workers and labourers" again on 27th it repeated: Revolution for freedom is the revolution for the poor. The free India will be of workers and peasants".

British Government concluded that it was a revolutionary movement of Socialists.

the headquarters of the Nizam Shahi dynasty. After the Nizam Shahis, it saw the rule of the Mughals, Marathas and the British.

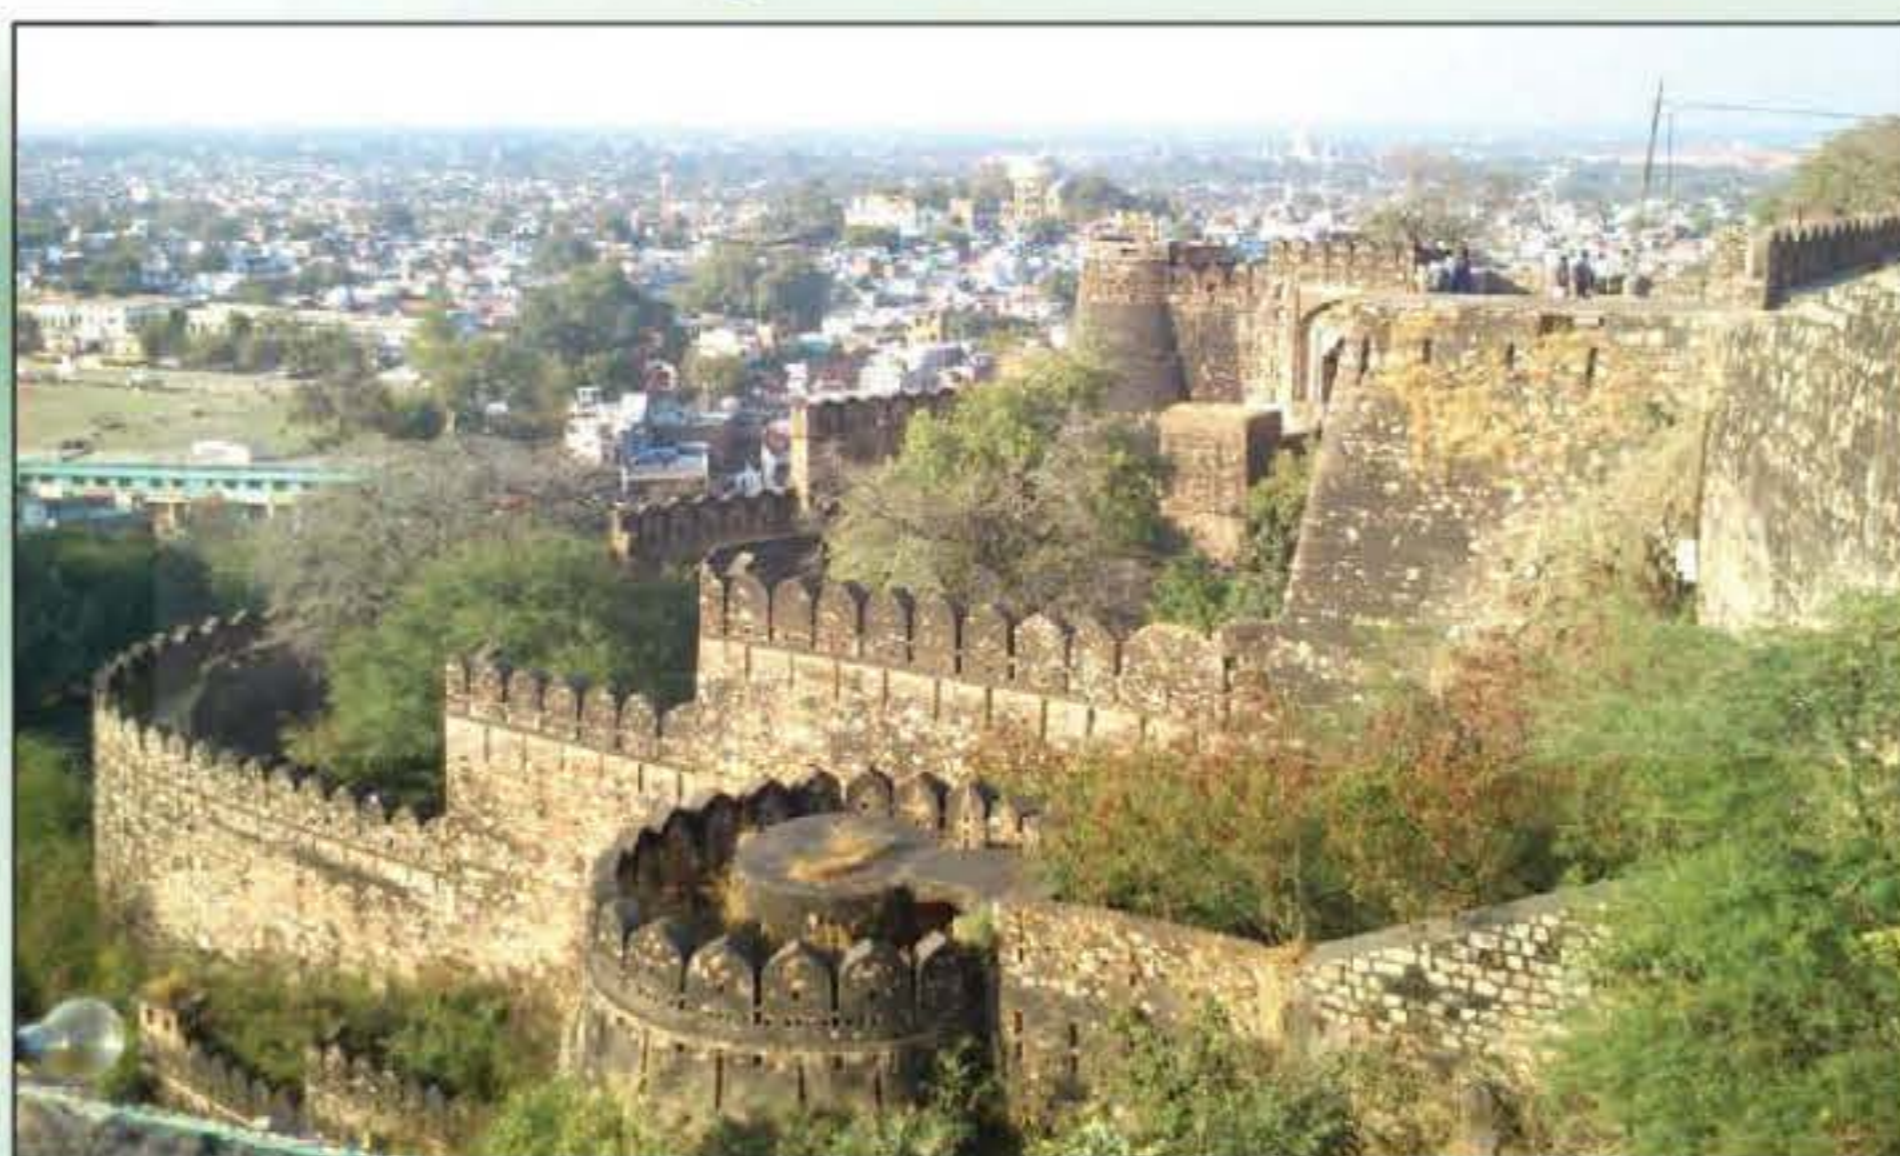

The fort today is remembered not only for the powerful dynasties that held sway over it, but also for its association with the freedom movement of our country. The fort was a site of considerable unrest during the First War of Independence in 1857. Around 7,000 Bhils, under the leadership of Bhagoji Naik, offered a tough resistance to the British.

This structure holds a special place in the memory of the freedom struggle as a place where important freedom fighters such as Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, Sardar Vallabhai Patel, Pandit Govind Vallabh Pant and Acharya Narendra Dev, were imprisoned.

These important leaders of our freedom movement were arrested on the eve of the Quit India Movement in 1942, which shook the foundations of the British Empire in India. The leaders were caught and imprisoned by the British in an attempt to prevent the movement from intensifying further. The leaders were incarcerated in a portion of the fort which is now known as the "Leaders' Block".

The records of the prison give detailed information about the activities of the freedom fighters during this time. It was here that Jawaharlal Nehru wrote The Discovery of India. One of the rooms of the fort has been especially dedicated to Nehru where some items of personal use such as his armchair, wall mirror and an enamel jug have been preserved and displayed for visitors.

The Jhansi Fort : A Siege to Remember

The fort of Jhansi immediately reminds us of Rani Lakshmi Bai, the warrior queen who stood up to the British. She valiantly led her army in the First War of Independence in India and the Jhansi fort was her battlefield.

With the uprising in 1857 in Meerut, Lakshmi Bai was proclaimed the regent of Jhansi by the revolutionaries. She proudly proclaimed "mein apni Jhansi nahi dungii" (I will not give my Jhansi) and, along with her supporters, took control of the fort.

The writings of Vishnubhat Godse (1827-1904), a priest who was in Jhansi at that time, offer a first-hand account of the happenings at Jhansi. The source also claims that the Rani issued a proclamation "We fight for Independence. In the words of Lord Krishna, we will, if we are victorious, enjoy the fruits of victory, if defeated and killed on the field of battle, we shall surely earn eternal glory and salvation".

As the British soldiers arrived to secure their rule in March 1857, they found both the city and the fort well-guarded with heavy guns. Rani Lakshmi Bai demonstrated masterful leadership in defending the fort and kept the British soldiers at bay for quite some time. However, despite her determination, the British soldiers broke down the south wall of the fort and captured it.

The fort at Jhansi embodies Rani Lakshmi Bai's courage and is symbolic of India's resistance against the oppressive rule of the British. Her palace, Rani Mahal, near the fort has been converted into a museum to showcase the weapons used in the siege of the Jhansi fort.

The Vellore Fort : Early Seeds of Dissent

The fort of Vellore, situated in the present-day state of Tamil Nadu, was built by the Vijayanagara rulers in the 16th century CE. It was where the Indian military garrison of Madras was stationed during the 19th century, under the rule of the British. It became the site of the famous Vellore mutiny of 1806 CE which preceded the uprising of 1857 by about 50 years. While the latter is widely documented as historians as the "First War of Independence, the Vellore mutiny in its own right was instrumental in inspiring a spirit of resistance against the oppressive rule of the British.

In 1805, a new dress code was sanctioned for the sepoys whereby they were not allowed to show any caste markings, had to trim their beards and moustaches, and remove their turbans. This hurt the sentiments of both the Hindu and the Muslim soldiers who comprised the army and caused widespread resentment.

On the 10th July, 1806, the soldiers killed the commander of the fort and raided the munitions depot which left them in control of this formidable fort. The British had hoisted the Union Jack in the Vellore Fort. In an incredibly fierce gesture, this flag was brought down and replaced by the Royal Tiger flag of Tipu Sultan as the sepoys proclaimed his second son as their king.

Later, about 100 soldiers who sought refuge within the fort were put up against a wall and shot in a "summary judgement". This brutality sent shock waves to England and in the aftermath of the mutiny, the new regulations were withdrawn and all the regiments of the Vellore region disbanded.

The Vellore fort hosted one of the first battles against the injustice of the British and provided fertile ground for the early seeds of dissent to grow. The revolt, which involved 800 revolutionaries, shook the British authority to their core. With its rich history, this fort thus offers an insight into the making of our nation.

The forts of India are some of the most awe-inspiring monuments found in the country. From the Himalayas to the peninsular tip, from the deserts to the lush valleys of North-East, forts adorn each and every corner of the landscape of the Indian subcontinent.

From the Indus Valley Civilization to the days of British rule, fortifications have been an abiding feature of our architectural heritage. The forts of India have stood witness to significant political events of the country. And many of them played a vital role in the Indian Independence movement. These forts became sites of resistance and struggle against the oppressive colonial rule.

Today, we view these monuments as memorials celebrating the spirit of resistance—the sacrifices, blood and sweat of our freedom fighters, that ultimately resulted in the Independence of our nation. Let us have a look at some such forts that are remembered till date as important bastions of our freedom struggle.

Fortifying Freedom : The Red Fort

After the tidings of the 1857 uprising reached from Meerut to Delhi, Bahadur Shah Zafar was proclaimed as the Emperor of Hindustan by the revolutionaries. He became the symbol of resistance against the colonial power and the revolutionaries took control of the Red Fort.

As the rebellion spread to other parts of the country, the British launched a strong offensive in order to recapture the Fort. They managed to suppress the rebellion and recapture the Fort. Bahadur Shah Zafar was tried in the Diwan-i-Khas in the fort and exiled to Rangoon (present day Myanmar). Following this, the Fort became a strong symbol for freedom and the British felt threatened and sought to demolish a large portion of it.

In the years post the Second World War, this fort again became the central point for echoing nationalist sentiments. One of the most well-known episodes of such oppression was the trials of the soldiers of the Indian National Army by the British Government, popularly called the 'Red Fort trials'.

However, oppression breeds resistance. "Never before in Indian history," admitted Jawaharlal Nehru, "had such unified sentiments been manifested by various sections of the population." Outcry over the trials, forced the British to commute the sentences of the three defendants in the first trial.

In 1947, the first Prime Minister of India hoisted the National Flag from the Red Fort and marked a new dawn. Today, it is customary for the Prime Minister to hoist the National Flag every year from here on Independence Day and address the nation. It is a historical marker for India's determination and symbolizes an independent nation.

The Ahmednagar Fort : A Legacy of Resistance

The Ahmednagar fort, tucked away in the city of Ahmednagar in Maharashtra, is considered to be one of the most formidable forts of the region. Built by Malik Ahmad Nizam Shah I in 1427 CE, the fort acted as

INDIA@75: A JOURNEY OF INDIA'S ...

India. Angus Maddison, a British economist estimated that India's share in global GDP was ~25% around 1700s which declined to ~3% in 1950s. In 1947, the Indian economy was predominantly dominated by the agriculture sector. As per the National Income Committee Report (1954), agriculture and allied sectors contributed nearly half of the national income. Mining, manufacturing and hand trades formed one sixth of the national income. Commerce, transport and communications added approximately one-sixth of the national income. Other services such as professions, administrative services, domestic services etc contributed ~15% of the national income. As we will observe further how this composition changed over the years driven by planned interventions, economic shocks and integration with the global economy.

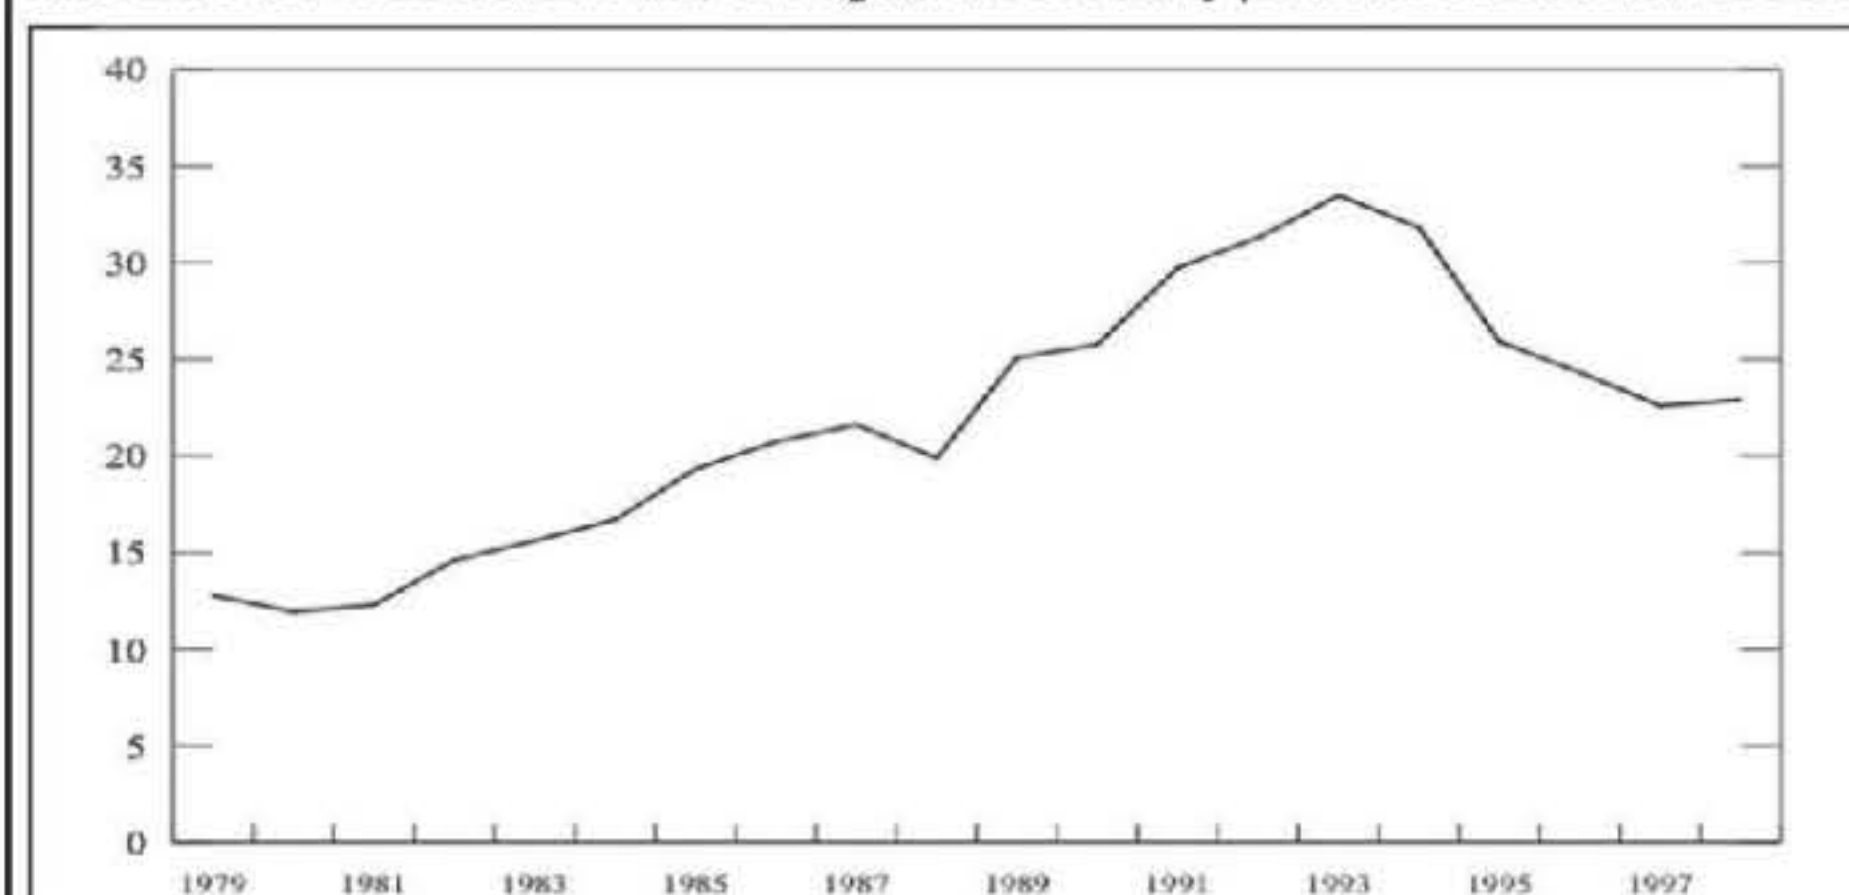

Era of Mixed Economy & the Five Year Plans (1951-1990)

India started its post-independence economic journey with the Industrial Policy Resolution of 1948 which categorised industries under four heads: Strategic Industries, Basic/Key Industries, Important Industries and Other Industries (Private & Cooperative Sector). The resolution put significant emphasis on public led industries to drive growth. Subsequently, the First Five Year Plan drafted by economist K N Raj was introduced for the period 1951-56 with a major focus on agriculture and energy and a growth target of 2.1%. The plan outperformed and registered a growth of 3.6%. The second Five Year Plan (1956-61), popularly known as the Mahalanobis Plan, brought the focus on rapid industrialization with a growth target of 4.5%. The plan could achieve a target of 4.27%. The plan period also coincided with the Industry Policy Resolution 1956 which aimed to implement the aims of the 1954 Parliamentary resolution of socialistic pattern of society in India. This led to control of major industries by the public sector but with a focus on capital goods and heavy industries resulting in setting up of mega hydropower projects in the country. During the second plan years, the public spending on industries went up from 4.9% to 24.15 while the agriculture sector saw a major drop from 37% to 20.9%. The Third Year Plan (1961-66) took a long term perspective of fifteen years with the objective to expand the economy rapidly and become self-reliant and self-generating. However, the set growth target of 5.6% couldn't be achieved and the economy by only 2.84% in this period. It is important to note that this period is marked by two wars and the severe drought of 1965. The Third plan period also bore the impact of lowering investment in agriculture in the previous plan. The country came close to a mass famine in 1960. The food imports and aids grew in this period. The Green Revolution started in 1965 which marked the modernization of agriculture with High Yielding Variety (HYV) seeds, mechanized farm tools, high use of fertilisers and expansion of irrigation systems. The fourth plan (1969-74) started after a gap of three years amidst rising inflation, shrinking economy and rising unemployment. The period also saw another war in 1971 and was hit by the international oil crisis of 1973. As a result, a growth of 3.3% was registered against the ambitious target of 5.7%. The fifth plan (1974-1979) continued to be marred by the increasing inflation and unemployment. The four-fold increase in oil prices and increase in prices of cereals, fertilisers, machinery and equipment, non-ferrous metals and other imported goods severely eroded the resources. The value of the three principal items of imports, namely food, fertilisers and Petroleum Oil and Lubricants (POL) accounted for as much as 53.2% of the total import bill in 1974-75, as against 42.6% in 1973-74 and 23% in 1972-73. Yet, the economy achieved a growth of 4.80% – an increase of 0.40 percentage points from the set target. At the beginning of the sixth plan (1980-85) growth prospects of the economy had been adversely affected by three factors: inflationary situation, constraints imposed by a poor performance in the basic infrastructure and the deteriorating balance of payments position. India's balance of trade has shown an adverse trend since 1977-78. As against; a surplus of Rs. 72 crores in 1976-77, the deficit in trade balance was Rs. 621 crores in 1977-78 and is reported to have been more than Rs. 2370 crores in 1979-80. The available data regarding the balance of trade for the first six months of 1980-81 show that the deficit has already exceeded Rs. 3000 crores. And, once gain the economy performed better than the set target. The seventh plan (1985-90) identified low productivity as one of the major weakness of the Indian economy. It maintained one major cause of low productivity is the inefficiency in the use of capital: the increases in output in several sectors have not been commensurate with the scale of investment undertaken. The focus of the plan, therefore, was on increasing productivity through bringing technological interventions. At the same time the balance of payment problem kept ballooning as India was financing its exports through imports.

India's external debt nearly doubled from some $35 billion at the end of 1984-85 to $69 billion by the end of 1990-91. Two sources of external shocks contributed the most to India's large current account deficit in 1990-91. The first shock came from events in the Middle East in 1990 and the consequent run-up in world oil prices, which helped precipitate the crisis in India. Second, the deterioration of the current account was also induced by slow growth in important trading partners. The forex reserves fell to an all-time low – with barely enough to support India's three weeks of import. Swift measures were taken by the then government first by devaluing the rupee twice in short span of time followed by opening of the Indian economy, more popularly known as the liberalisation, privatisation and globalisation (LPG) reforms.

The 1991 reforms remains an important milestone in the growth of Indian economy as we see an inflection point in the growth rates in the following decades.

The GDP per capita grew from $82.2 in 1960 to $303.1 in 1991 in a span of 30 years. In the next thirty years i.e. from 1991 to 2021 the GDP per capita grew by more than seven times to reach $2277.4 in 2021.

In between 1991-2000, a series of reforms such as the Liberalised Exchange Rate Management System was introduced, Guidelines for the establishment of private sector banks were brought, National Stock Exchange commenced operations (1994), Foreign Institutional Investors (debt funds) permitted to invest in dated Government Securities (1997), Foreign Exchange Management Act, 1999 replaced FERA, 1973. The next two decades saw phenomenal growth of the Indian economy accompanied by the rise of India's IT might, global expansion and acquisitions by Indian private companies, rise in exports and inflow of foreign capital which further fuelled India's growth. While India made strides in economic growth it also saw major improvements in the human development indicators and quality of life as discussed below.

2. Strides made under Human DevelopmentHealth & Nutrition:

India's life expectancy at the time of Independence was ~32 years. The infant mortality rate (IMR) stood at 146/100 live births while the maternity mortality rate stood at 1000/100000 live births. There were only 50,000 doctors across the country. The infant mortality rate further declined to 89 in 1990 to 28 in 2020 nearly par with the global average of 27. Similarly, the MMR reduced to 556 in 1990 and further to 103 in 2017-18 as per the special bulletin released by the Registrar General of India in March 2022. The number of doctors grew to 393,424 in 1990 and to 13,01,319 in 2021.

As per the NFHS first survey in 1992, 53.4% of the children under age 4 were underweight, and 52% were stunted. In the latest NFHS fifth survey (2019-21), the underweight and stunted children percentages has come down to 32.1% and 35% respectively.

Education:

At the eve of Independence only 18% of the population was literate which increased to 39% in 1990 and today it stands at ~74%. In 1950-51, ~ 14% of the children had access to upper primary education and 42% had access to primary education. These numbers increased to reach 101.03% for primary GER and 60.11% for upper primary

BEST ENTRY FOR

ISSUE DATED 23-29 July 2022

Question: The ministry of Education has launched India Ranking 2022 in which IIT Madras has been ranked top among all educational institutions in the country. Institute of Science (IISc), Bengaluru has secured the second position in the overall ranking and the top rank among universities followed by Jawaharlal Nehru University, Delhi. While Miranda House, Delhi has topped among the list colleges, AIIMS Delhi and Ahmedabad have also topped in their respective category. According to you, what are the qualities that make these institutions premier/what qualities should an educational institute possess to become the best?

POOJA JASWAL PATHANKOT

Educational institutions are the backbone of a country. An ideal student is a great asset to a nation wherein these foundations ought to play an extremely important role in the formation and gradual development of their career.

As a student myself, I think that organisations providing education must possess several qualities in order to provide students with an enabling environment. It should ignite the minds with an urge for knowledge

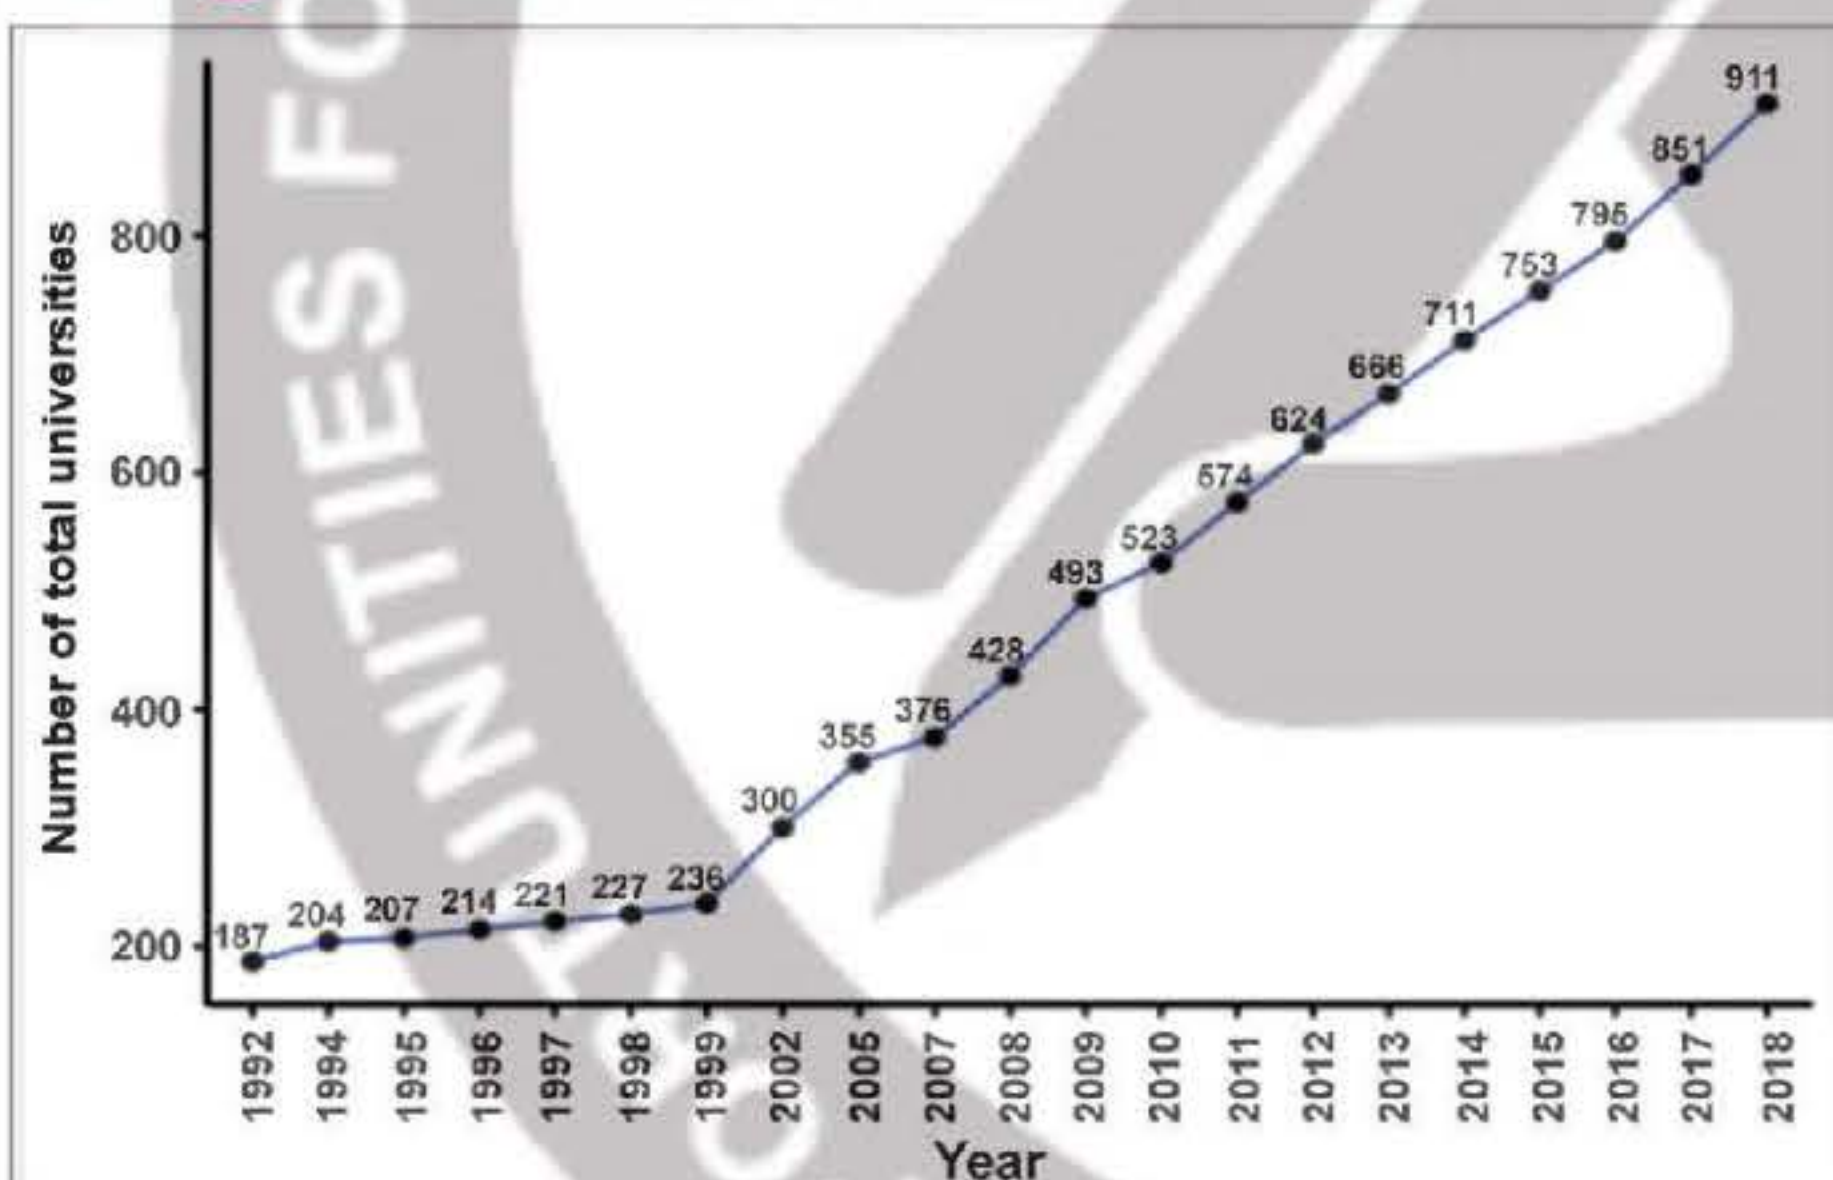

- First and foremost, the quality of tutoring must not be compromised under any circumstances. The teachers obviously need to be excellent scholars and masters in their field of expertise as highly eminent intellectuals and influence the success rate of academics as well.

- Moreover, the institution that produces high-impact research with usage of latest technologies and necessary exposure in many fields sustains and is always worth the hype.
- The large endowments play a significant role. Immense external funds allow affording the best equipment, libraries, and infrastructure. They can support top-notch research with the money they get.
- The recognition given to the institution is a very important determinant. It should be certified by the governing body as a place fit and appropriate enough. Furthermore, this will also have an impact on the end certification given to the learner and the legitimacy of it.
- An institute that offers a very generous financial program and makes sure that finances will not be the reason one would not choose the College or university definitely deserve to be counted as the best ones to exist.

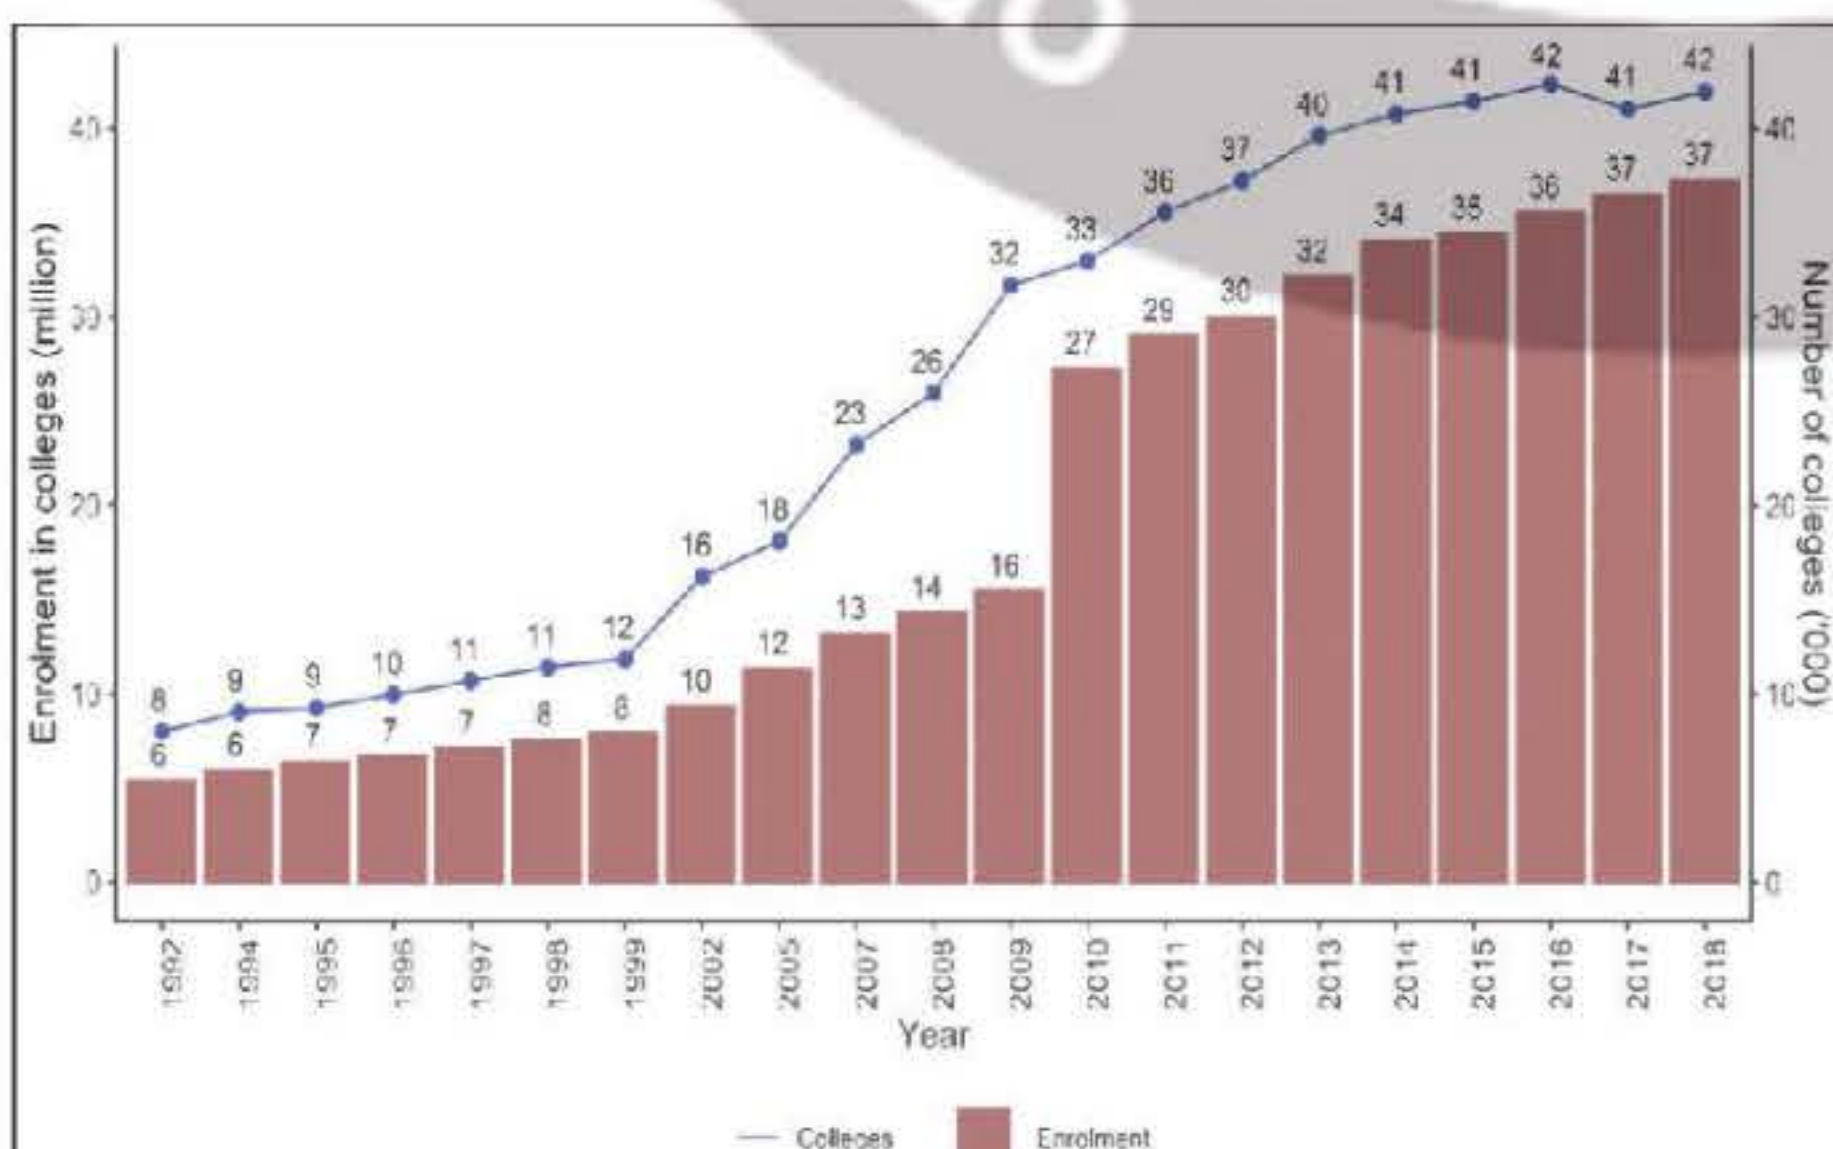

These are only a few key qualities and attributes from a long list. Apart from these, students might consider infrastructure, dorms, the nutrition provided or regular maintenance and upgradation as important points as well. At the end of the day, an institution is supposed to be a place that respects the diversity of people and acts in an unbiased manner towards the students enrolled.

INDIA@75: A JOURNEY OF INDIA'S ...

Growth of Universities in India post liberalisation

Growth of colleges vis-à-vis growth in enrolment

GER in 1990-91. At per UDISE 2020-21, the primary and upper primary GER stand at 103.28% and 92.17% respectively. The World Bank funded District Primary Education Program (1992) and later the self-funded GOI program Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan (2001) laid the foundation for today's near universal elementary school enrolment (99.09% GER) in India. The RTE Act 2009 played a major role in ensuring mandatory free education to all children in the age group 6-14 years. While the achievements in school education are commendable, India made significant progress in the higher education as well.

At the time of independence India had 578 colleges and 27 university level institutions with an enrolment of 0.40 million. The numbers increased significantly especially 1991 onwards.

At present India boasts of 1000+ universities, over 40,000 colleges enrolling ~40 million students at a GER of 27.1%. In terms of qualitative achievements, India stands at third position in terms of publication of scientific articles right behind US and China. Of the 13,045 patents in 2017-18, as many as 1,937 were by Indians. At the same time Indian Start-up ecosystem has boomed like anything. India houses 100 unicorns with total valuation of INR 25 lakh crores.

Areas of Improvement

India has made significant progress on the economic as well as social indicators. However, the quarter century to the centenary year of Independence is an opportunity to reflect upon the areas which need further improvement. For instance, though India has proactively undertaken reforms to improve child and maternal health, stunting remains a major roadblock in attainment of full potential of a child. At the same time India houses the maximum diabetic patient and other non-communicable diseases across the globe. There is an urgent need to tackle many of these lifestyle diseases head-on.

On the educational front, though we have achieved universal elementary enrolment, the learning outcomes of school students is a serious concern. The National Education Policy 2020 recognises this challenge. Similarly, as per the latest India Skills Report co-published by AICTE, only ~50% of our graduates are employable. India is one of the youngest nation with a median age of 28 years. We need to equip our youth with right skills and education to be able to reap the benefits of the demographic dividend.

The service sector contributes ~54% of India's total Gross Value Added (GVA), the industry sector contributes ~26% and the agriculture and allied sector contributes ~20% to the GVA. However, the agriculture and allied sector contribute maximum to the employment pool -- ~43% followed by services at ~32% and industry at ~25%. The issue of underemployment and disguised unemployment in the agriculture and allied sector needs to be resolved as the income of the labour force involved in the sector is not encouraging.

India has also made great progress in terms of gender equality. The gender parity in access to education at all levels is either >1 or = 1. However, the inclusion of women in financially rewarding disciplines is skewed. For instance, girls form only ~30% of the total enrolment in technical courses such as engineering and management etc. Similarly, the female labour force participation, though has shown improvement in recent years, stands at ~22% in FY 20-21. And, they form only 10.5% of the total parliamentarians in the country.

3. Conclusion:

If India needs to transition into a developed and high human development country, it needs to accelerate the pace of reform trajectory that it has taken in different fields. Be it the Poshan Abhiyan or Ayushman Bharat or NIPUN Bharat or Gender Budgeting or Skills Mission or Maximum Governance and Minimum Government, there is a need to work in a mission mode with clear timelines and rigorous monitoring of progress and course correction in order to achieve the holistic economic and human development goals set under SDG 2030. This could pave the way towards accelerated development in the run up to the 100th year of independence post the 2030 goalpost. The Government of India has come up with several programmes aimed at empowering all the stakeholders—public, private, philanthropic and common citizens so that each can contribute towards building New India. As it's said it takes a village to raise a child, the making of Atmanirbhar Bharat will be only be possible through Sabka Saath, Sabha Vikas, Sabha Vishwas and Sabka Prayas!
